THIRD PARTY CHIEFS MAKE AN AGREEMENT WITH BOB'S PEOPLE

Committee of 48 Starts to Organize for Wisconsin Membership

WILL NOT GET IN STATE CAMPAIGN AS A PARTY

Suggest La Follette as Their Candidate for President

MADISON, Wis.—The liberal party has entered Wisconsin. This political vehicle of the committee of 48 has gained its footing in the state and plans for a membership drive are now under way.

The Liberal party is a new political organization with national aspirations. Its leaders are the men who organized the committee of 48. It is the medium of political activity of the committee of 48 which was created for the purpose of ultimately bringing into existence a new party.

Two conferences have been held in Wisconsin. The first was in Milwaukee, the other in Madison. The Milwaukee gathering resulted in the establishment of a nucleus from which will grow the executive committee of the party in Wisconsin. Members of this primary Wisconsin committee are Lieutenant Governor George S. Cousins, Max Noll, A. J. Schmitz and Mrs. George Kernan. These men and women will name other members and get under way the state organization.

The Madison conference was held Thursday afternoon in the offices of Glenn Turner, Madison attorney.

Take in La Folletteites

It was explained this morning by those who attended the Madison meeting Thursday afternoon that the conference was a get-together gathering of La Follette progressives with J. A. H. Hopkins, chairman of the executive committee of 48's. Hopkins is touring the middle west getting the state organizations of the liberals under way.

Hopkins, having a "day off," was invited to Madison to meet La Follette progressive leaders for an informal discussion of the national situation. The La Follette followers wanted to learn from him of Senator La Follette's attitude toward the new party. Hopkins has conferred with the senior senator on the new movement.

Platt is Chairman

Chester Platt, editor of the Wisconsin Nonpartisan Leader, acted as chairman of the meeting. Those invited to attend were William Kittle, Edward Nordman, Louis Nagler, Miss Anita Keenan, Judge Long, Judge C. Ross, Glenn Turner, Mrs. Glenn Turner, Mrs. E. C. Roebel, Fred Holmes, William Evjue, Louis Gettle, Emil Plasden, Alfred Rogers, Marcus Johnson, Joe Brown, Mrs. Edna Clyamweth, Mrs. Keenan, E. J. Onstad, William Kelly, William Kirsch.

This group included the leaders in the La Follette Progressive association and the Nonpartisan league in Wisconsin. They will direct the 1922 campaign for La Follette and his running mates.

Hopkins made it clear that in Wisconsin the liberal party will not enter the state campaign as a party. It will lend its influence and co-operation in order that when the national campaign comes on in 1924 it will be able to enter the field as an established entity.

In a number of other states the liberal party is to get into the state elections taking place next year. Those states as enumerated by Hopkins are Ohio, Michigan, Illinois, Idaho, Nebraska, Colorado and Montana. The organization is working in the middle belt with the object, according to Mr. Hopkins, of gradually spreading out north, south, east and west.

Early next spring the new party, Hopkins said, will have its first convention. This convention will not be for the purpose of selecting candidates. At the present time the party leaders are discouraging candidate talk. The spring gathering will be a sort of get-together session.

Concerning the possibility of Senator La Follette's candidacy for the presidency, Hopkins said that he did not know. He gave the view, however, that "If I were in Senator La Follette's position those are the alternates I feel were before me—I am 68 years of age; would it be best to continue in the senate and be a power in the new party or resign from the senate and make the race for president?"

Harding Proposes World Pact To Include Germany

Suggests Association For Annual Peace Conferences

WASHINGTON, D. C.—The United States government is about to put on foot a movement to bring out of the arms conference a system of similar but extended annual conferences to deal with the troubles of the world.

President Harding also has in mind the calling of other nations to Washington conference, near its close, to approve whatever it shall have done. This would include Germany.

Such an announcement was made at the white house Friday afternoon. It represents the intention to carry out the republican party platform plank advocating an association of nations and a world court.

HARDING'S IDEA HAS OPPONENTS

President Harding has had talks with delegates of the important nations for conference under a looser sort of arrangement than the covenant of the league of nations. It is the belief of the administration that these delegates, some of whom are important leaders of the league, do not look with disfavor upon the idea.

The arms conference is studying regulation of airplanes, poison gas and the revision of the laws of war. These affect all nations, and it is the idea of the white house officials that the "made in America" league or association would become a reality if all nations were invited toward the end of the conference to sanction what may be done.

NEED OF FURTHER CONFERENCES

It has now become evident that only a certain amount of progress can be made toward unshackling China at this conference, since what the powers will do in the application of the Root principles depends on what the Chinese government shows itself able to do in the future. Therefore, there is room in the far east situation for pressing the advisability of further conferences.

The biggest result of the present conference with regard to land disarmament will be the recognition of the fact that real army reduction must wait on the restoration of stability in Europe Therefore, next year or the year after, or some other year, a conference can discuss land disarmament.

None of the league leaders here would discuss Friday night the program of President Harding. However, the indications are that the American proposal for annual conference of the nations will not be rejected.

The wish of the American government for a world court, coupled with the American refusal of membership in the league of nations and its failure to subscribe to the Geneva world court project, naturally raises the question of whether the American government would insist on a special "made in America" court, or whether it would subscribe to the league formed world court, which will be put into operation within a few weeks.

PRESIDENT HARDING

ROOT GAVE HIS SUPPORT

Senator Root had a large part to do with the preparation of the plan for this court. His favorite proposal of universal and compulsory jurisdiction for the court was not definitely adopted, but a method was left for it to be given compulsory jurisdiction by any nations who wished to do so in respect to their international differences.

There are two classes of nations which insist most strongly that the league must not die. One class is composed of those nations who, like France and Belgium, have vital interests, such as the watching over the disarmament of Germany and the holding of the Saar basin and the giving of titles for mandated territories. The other class is composed of smaller nations who see no sufficient reason for throwing away their league for the good of another association made in America.

ACCOUNTING FROM FORMER TREASURERS ASKED IN ILLINOIS

Use of State Funds for Personal Purposes Charged in Suits Filed Saturday

CHARGES SIMILAR TO CRIMINAL CASE AGAINST GOVERNOR SMALL

Suits Directed Against Five Former State Officials

SPRINGFIELD, Ill.—By The Associated Press.—Suits for accounting against five former state treasurers alleging shortages of approximately $2,500,000 were started Saturday by Attorney General E. J. Brundage.

The suits cover the six terms preceding that of the present treasurer, Edward E. Miller, and are directed against all state treasurers who held office between 1909 and 1921.

The other former treasurers involved are: Governor Len Small, Lieutenant governor Fred E. Sterling, William Ryan, Jr., Edward E. Mitchell and State Auditor Andrew Russell.

Small Indictment Basis

Disclosures made through the investigation of the state treasury which resulted in indictment of Gov. Small, Lieut.-Gov. Sterling and Vernon S. Curtis, banking associate of Gov. Small, last July, furnished the evidence on which the civil suits were based, the attorney general's office announced.

The suit filed against Lieut.-Gov. Sterling alleges that $10,000,000 of state money used by Treasurer Len Small and the late Senator E. J. Curtis for their own personal profit, continued under the control of Curtis after Sterling, Small's successor, became treasurer.

The bill alleges that shortly after Small became treasurer in 1917 he entered into a scheme with Curtis to use large sums of money for their own private gain. Small, at the expiration of his term, the bill continues, removed from the treasurer's office, books and records relating to deposits loans and interest charges.

Invested in Packers' Notes

A large part of the money handled through the arrangement was invested in notes of Armour and Company and Swift and Company, Chicago packers and the bill charges that Curtis collected approximately $2,000,000 interest from the packers.

These particulars of the civil suits are similar to and in fact cover the same charges made in the criminal cases pending against Small and Sterling and Vernon Curtis, who is a brother of the late senator whose death occurred in March 1920.

Accounts not Itemized

All of the bills charge that the five former treasurers made only two reports each on interest earnings during their terms; that the interest accounts were not itemized but submitted in lump sum.

Interest turned over to the state by these former treasurers, according to figures given by Attorney General Brundage's office follow:

Russell (1909-11), $80,306.42.
Mitchell (1911-13), $166,221.03.
Ryan (1913-15), $180,953.92.
Russell (1915-17), $142,883.39.
Small (1917-19), $450,010.12.
Sterling (1919-21), $996,121.85.

The bill against Governor Small contains many allegations similar to the Sterling bill.

Bills against Russell, Ryan and Mitchell contain substantially the same general charges except as to amounts.

POWERS AGREE TO GIVING UP CHINESE P.O.'S

General Agreement Reached Upon Withdrawal of Foreign Postal Service in China

MEET ON MONDAY TO WORK OUT PLAN FOR NEW COURTS

Disarmament Debate Reported Proceeding Well; British Want Submarine Agreement, too

WASHINGTON, D. C.—By The Associated Press.—The withdrawal of foreign postoffices in China was informally agreed to in principle Saturday by the far eastern committee of the Washington conference and resolutions to that effect will be drafted by a sub-committee authorized to work out details of the plan.

The question of extra-territoriality, the gradual abolition of which was agreed to in principle Friday, was not considered.

The informal agreement with respect to withdrawal by the foreign powers of the postal services maintained by them in China, it was stated, was not final but the sub-committee dealing with it will be guided by the general expressions favorable to that end.

Formal Resolutions Monday

At request of M. Viviani of the French delegation, the sub-committee to deal with foreign postoffices was called to meet later Saturday. A meeting of the sub-committee considering extra territorial rights in China was called for 10 o'clock Monday. It is the intention to have resolutions dealing both with the extra-territorial rights and postoffice matters ready for another meeting of the full committee on far eastern affairs Monday at 11 o'clock.

The sub-committee on Chinese postoffices was limited to the four powers, United States, Great Britain, France and Japan, having such postal stations in China. Senator Lodge was chosen as the American member of the sub-committee.

British Want U-Boat Pact

The American and British naval experts were said Saturday virtually have completed their examination of the technical points involved in Secretary Hughes' proposals. The Japanese experts however, were still considering the figures involved.

The British were said to feel that highly satisfactory progress had been made but their spokesmen would not indicate the trend of the expert examinations, beyond stating that it was certain the submarine question would be one of the chief points involved in any agreement reached by the conference.

Demand U-Boat Agreement

There is strong belief in Great Britain, it was said that the conference will not be an unqualified success unless some action is taken to curb the size and nature of future "undersea navies" similar to the steps proposed as to surface fleets.

The statement that British experts were ready to present their findings to the conference follows the assertion yesterday by the Japanese to warrant any departure from the American schedule of tonnage in fixing the present or proposed proportionate strength of the three navies.

Harding Plan Big Interest

With the arms conference negotiations proceeding in an atmosphere of friendliness which delegates generally believe insures progress and accomplishment, increasing importance attached to its outcome today as a result of the informally expressed hopes of President Harding that the conclave might lay the foundation for

ULSTER INSISTS ON ALLEGIANCE PLEDGE FROM SINN-FEINERS

Sir James Craig to Make First Announcement of Cause of Present Crisis

LLOYD GEORGE EXPECTED TO CALL GENERAL ELECTION

Would Extend Truce Pending Mandate from People

LONDON.—By The Associated Press.—The first official pronouncement of the cause of the crisis which has arisen in the Irish peace negotiations will probably be made by Sir James Craig, the Ulster premier, at the reopening of the Northern Ireland parliament next Tuesday. He is expected to disclose that when he saw Premier Lloyd George Friday the latter was unable to assure him that the Sinn Fein had consented to declare allegiance to the king. Attorney general Hewart, who, with Lord Birkenhead, discussed this matter with the representatives of the Dail Eireann last night have hinted that this was the stumbling block.

Should the negotiators find themselves unable to overcome the determination of Sinn Fein on this question, it is believed Lloyd George will make a flying visit to Washington, meanwhile securing, by the promise of a general election for obtaining a new mandate from the people, an extension of the existing truce.

The premier has gone to Chequers Court for the week-end and Sir James Craig is in Belfast where he met the Ulster cabinet. Arthur Griffith, head of the Sinn Fein delegation returned Saturday morning from Dublin to London after securing the endorsement of the dail cabinet to the attitude which he had assumed. The other dail delegates remain in Dublin.

The Sinn Fein's explanation of the burning of the Rathkeale workhouse County Limerick, allegedly by the Irish republican army, reported Friday night, is that it regarded the announcement by the British military, to the effect that it intended taking over the workhouse as a strategic move. The republicans who had been occupying the structure, thereupon decided not to surrender the building and so informed the government. On Thursday however, British forces moved on the building and the republicans, considering this a breach of the truce, destroyed the structure.

SIMMS SAYS:

Parley to Bare Secret Pacts

BY WM. PHILIP SIMMS

WASHINGTON, D. C.—The hidden hand of the Japanese general staff which for years has been closing around Peking and all North China, is about to be revealed.

Giving the lie to the charge that they are the puppets of General Chang Tso-lin, ex-bandit and tool of Japan, members of the Chinese delegation here will not be satisfied with anything less than a complete showdown 2 secret agreements concerning China. And Japan is balking.

Japan, they charge, is the chief offender in the matter of secret dealings with the Flowery Republic. Thirty-odd agreements were forced upon Peking and the provinces—in some instances with the connivance of high Chinese officials—in 1918 when secret loans amounting to more than $100,000,000 were made on security of railroads and mining properties.

Through these loans Japan gradually broadened her "spheres of influence" from which to draw vast quantities of raw materials without molestation.

Army Pact Up, Too

The Sino-Japanese military agreement of March, 1918, likewise will be brought to the attention of the conference according to plans, though it may likewise implicate a number of Chinese in league with the military party of Japan.

Through this agreement, the terms of which have never fully been made public, China, according to "President" Sun Yat-sen, has been corrupted, disrupted and burdened with continuous civil war.

Hundreds of Japanese officers have been "loaned" to the armies of Northern China, and there they exercise a subtle, but practical, control of Peking itself.

These secret loans and military pacts, the Chinese point out, are in direct violation of the Anglo-Japanese alliance guaranteeing the status quo in the far east. They demand the denunciation of this alliance.

Japan's secret pacts slam shut the open door to the Orient, the Chinese contend; and this doctrine is American so they expect the support of the United States.

England, France, Italy and America will stand by China. Only Japan appears reticent. She may yet wriggle out while appearing to yield.

Japan's instructions, ostensibly, come from the Japanese prime minister. In reality they come from the hidden hand of Prince Yamagata, head of the military party and the power behind the throne.

MLIWAUKEE NORMAL PROFESSOR IS FOUND DROWNED IN LAKE

MILWAUKEE, Wis.—Lying face downward in two feet of water, the body of Prof. Walter H. Cheever, vice president of the Milwaukee Normal school, and professor of psychology there, was found in Lake Michigan about noon Saturday. He had been dead some hours.

Prof. Cheever left his home Friday afternoon, according to his daughter, Mrs. McGee, with whom he lived. She said he had left no word as to where he was going.

President Carroll G. Pearse of the Milwaukee Normal, said Prof. Cheever had been in poor health for some time. Mr. Cheever was a well-known Chautauqua lecturer.

WAGE DATA SUPPLIED BY ROADS DELUSIVE SAYS UNION OFFICER

Figures Branded as "Statistical Fallacies" at Senate Committee Hearing

SHOWED HIGHER WAGES THAN RECEIVED BY MEN HE CLAIMS

Included Salaries of Highly-paid Officials Says Warne

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Railroad wage figures supplied by railroad executives to the interstate commerce commission and the railroad labor board were branded as "statistical fallacies" by Frank J. Warne, economist for the railroad brotherhoods, in a further discussion Saturday of railroad questions before the senate interstate commerce committee. He charged the railroad data was untrue, misleading and intended to show a higher average wage than any employes received.

The railroad heads, he asserted, made the higher wage showing by including in the wage figures the salaries of highly paid executives and general officers. He cited as one instance the grouping of an official with a salary of $100,000 a year with sixty employes whose annual pay averaged about $1,500. The witness added the ability of the executives to "get away" with the arrangement had resulted in tremendous increases in the salaries of general officers with a consequent showing of increases in the payrolls of the corporations and a higher general average.

Mr. Warne stated as proof of his assertions there had been an increase of $30,000,000 in the annual pay of general and division officers in the last five years, while the number of these officers increased only from 17,000 to 22,000. The effect of this, he added, was to show an increase in annual wages paid to the extent of $30,000,000 more than had actually been disbursed to the employes.

Mr. Warne said these salaries of officials are not properly a part of the railway wage problem and demanded that they be eliminated from wage statistics.

The town, led by Mayor Maxon, turned out to search for the bootlegger when a drunken man was seen on Main street and, with the aid of a Chicago detective, he was found. Now the whole town will aid in his prosecution.

SCHULTE TESTIFIES TO BUSINESS DEALS WITH F. W. HUMRICH

Fred W. Humrich, charged with obtaining $1,000 from Ernest G. Schulte of Colby, Wis., under false pretense, pleaded not guilty when arraigned Saturday morning before County Judge Brindley. After hearing the testimony of Schulte the case was continued. Schulte said he gave Humrich $1,000 and took three notes for $500 each. Schulte was to be a partner of Humrich in an electrical and repair business in Pearl street, known as the Automotive Service company. Schulte testified that Humrich represented to him that business was good, that there was stock in the store valued at $5,000 but that when he entered the business they did practically no business the first two weeks. Soon after Schulte entered partnership with Humrich, the latter left the city. He was arrested in Wichita, and brought back to La Crosse.

Taking American Labor-Saving Devices

As a means of solving the servant girl problem, the English people are taking to the American labor-saving ideas, which have been in vogue in this country for some time but which have not been received in England. The electric iron is a favorite and other electric conveniences are being rapidly introduced. The Americans have a practical monopoly of this class of trade and it means much to the electrical manufacturers of this country.

Threatening

A SENSATIONAL newspaper quotes—on questionable authority—a reported statement by ex-President Wilson to the effect that France was forcing the world into war by her post-war policy. We doubt very much that Mr. Wilson said it, or said anything that could be so interpreted without great violence to his meaning. But were it not for the violent aversion to war which grips every civilized nation the fact that France is following a course not greatly different in its general trend than that followed by the Germans after 1870 might well offer a basis for such a prediction. Her great conscript army, her stubborn refusal to reduce it to any considerable extent, her constant efforts to extend a system of alliances through Central Europe and the Near East in nearly everything, indeed, except a naval challenge, the course of French policy since the war parallels that of Hohenzollern Germany. It is a course that leads toward war.

Premier Briand, starting home after his speech before the conference at Washington justifying the French army, professes to see in the general statements of sympathy which were expressed in reply to his address by Balfour and Hughes, acquiescence in the trend of France's foreign policy. Perhaps that is the reason why the British foreign minister, Lord Curzon, expressed himself as bluntly as he did in his sensational address in London Thursday. Britain cannot afford, by any appearance of silent acceptance, to encourage the French in a policy that seems directed upon the military control of Europe. Lord Curzon's warning to France was more frank than diplomatic, but it evidently appeared to the British government as a case requiring relatively desperate treatment.

American opinion, we believe, will incline to take Lord Curzon's side of the argument. His contention that France is better protected by the determination of the world that no military imperialism shall again threaten its peace is more in harmony with our views than the French appeal to military supremacy for security. Spokesmen for the Italian delegation take the same view. Already the inevitable coalescence of powers against a too powerful neighbor seems to be under way. The preliminary consensus of public opinion is being formed and formal "defensive alliances", "ententes", or similar groupings, are the logical next step—with all they mean in the way of suspicion, jealousy—and eventually war.

It is too bad that, by tacit consent, there was no determined effort to bring the question of land armament before the conference. Just enough was said to bring the conflict between French and British policy to the fore, and to inflame the antagonism existing. Perhaps this will prove beneficial in the long run by emphasizing the necessity for action to avert the clash which threatens, and focussing the efforts of public opinion and statecraft upon means of accommodation. But, as the matter stands, it is threatening. It is a question certainly no less pressing, no less charged with evil possibilities, than the naval building race and the clash of interests in the Far East.

More Than a Saving

LAND disarmament has been dismissed by the Washington conference with a wave of the hand. Agreement "in principle" upon the integrity of China and the open door runs on the rocks of solidly maintained special interests at every effort to bring it into the domain of practical, immediate application. Apparently the one solid and substantial result of the conference is going to be the adoption of the 5-5-3 ratio of naval strength between England, the United States and Japan, respectively, and a mutual agreement upon a ten year naval holiday.

How much, absolutely, is this toward the desired result of assured world peace?

Because it settles none of the issues which make China and the Pacific the cockpit of contending national policies, there is a tendency abroad to discount the value of the limitation of naval armaments which seems practically certain to be the main, almost the only, solid result of the conference. And this is largely true. The potential causes of war in the Far East will remain even after the designated ships are scrapped and the building yards dismantled, unless the conference goes further than now seems probable. But that does not necessarily imply that the only benefit of naval disarmament is reduction of taxes. In a very real and positive way the Hughes program will tend to minimize the danger of war in the Pacific.

The reduction of navies will operate to remove the danger of war in the Far East, despite the continued existence of most of the points of conflict which bring nations into friction, because it leaves every nation interested with a navy too small to make aggressive war. It reduces the three big navies of the world to a size sufficient for defense, but leaves them all too small to carry the fighting to a foreign coast. With a navy sixty percent the size of that of the United States, any Japanese jingo dream of landing an army in California or on the Isthmus of Panama becomes manifestly impossible. Nor will the navies of the United States or England be large enough to protect around-the-world communications for expeditionary forces to the Far East, against the short-radius defensive fighting craft of Japan, planted at the gateway of the water routes.

The naval limitation program does not remove the causes of war, but it greatly enhances the prospects of such a removal, because it strips the powers involved in the differences of the means of prosecuting their quarrels. If they are to get anywhere at all, they have got to settle, and to settle on a basis that all can accept. There will be no "big stick" left to be thrown into the scales to force an unjust decision. That is a practical result of "disarmament" which in its far reaching importance seems to outweigh the very substantial reduction of taxes which is the immediate blessing of a ten year building holiday.

Presents

GETTING your Christmas presents ready? Pack them carefully. Use plenty of string, wrapped tightly, tied in knots that will not slip. Don't leave edges of paper sticking out so it will tear if caught when another package hits it. A porter, asked if an old trunk would stand a trip across the continent, raised it to level of his waist, dropped it and said, "It'll last to St. Louis." Then he lifted it over his head and slammed it to the platform. "Yep," he informed, "it won't break open." Christmas packages come in a flood and get a lot of throwing around. Keep that in mind, when packing.

Soft

TOO much pampering is weakening the human race, says Prof. Raymond Pearl, of Johns Hopkins University. In caring for our bodies, most of us take the easiest way. A man puts in half a day, working hard to get his auto in good condition. Suggest that he devote as much exercise to his body, and he scowls. Soft living is a direct road to bad health. Exercise, to keep your joints from rusting, your system from accumulating poisons. A brisk daily walk will add years to your life.

Tinsel Is Gold

BY CLARISSA MACKIE

Morella De Lue was at home.

It was rather a dingy room whose keynote was the drab-brown of the conventional cheap boarding house—but there were high lights of color, where a gay silk petticoat burst through the swelling curtains of a corner closet, or pink lingerie tumbled carelessly out of a half-open drawer. The wide couch, that served as a bed by night, was heaped high with gorgeous pillows—and for the rest there was Morella herself, red-gold hair endowed by nature, sea-blue eyes set beneath a thoughtful brow; a large, sweet mouth, that always smiled—oftimes when it wanted to droop with weariness—a tiny mite of a Morella, who could dance like an elf on the brim of the Magic Fountain, and who could sing cheerily in the dull room as she sewed spangles on gossamer elfin wings that she must wear that night.

Heavy footsteps sounded outside her door, and she heard the plaintive voice of her landlady.

"A gentleman to see you, Miss De Lue— here's his card." The steps wandered away and Morella snatched at the bit of white pasteboard under the door. "Andrew——" she breathed softly. "Andrew Fenton—coming here to see me! Morella, wake up, this is a dream—it's a joke—Nony Waite has played a joke on you and is now giggling in the parlor downstairs." Nevertheless, she kissed the card and tucked it away in her workbasket. In a moment she had changed the kimona for a little gray gown, twisted her glorious hair into a semblance of order and went demurely down stairs to the grim parlor where Andrew Fenton, author of the musical show "The Magic Fountain," was waiting to see her—for Morella was the humblest member of the dancing elves. Sometimes Fenton had talked to her behind the scenes, but this was the first time he had signled her out for marked attention.

Andrew Fenton was a clever looking man of thirty five, with brilliant dark eyes and a fine mouth that smiled down at Morella's astonishment in a very kindly way.

"It's a glorious day, Miss De Lue," he said. "You looked pale last night—my car is outside and I'm going to take you out to the shore to see the waves dancing in the sunlight—perhaps you might learn some new steps, but I believe you could teach the waves to fly!"

"Angelic man!" sighed Morella, twin roses in her cheeks, feeling like saucy Nony Waite.

"Later, when the wheels of the powerful machine crunched a sandy shore and the fresh sound breeze had whipped more color into Morella's lovely little face, Fenton brought the conversation around to the play, Morella's part in it and finally asked her bluntly what she was doing in New York anyway, all alone at her age.

"Born here," said Morella briefly.

"But not bred here," smiled Fenton.

"Well—we did live in a little country town for years—then mother died and father married again—well, I've always longed for New York and Broadway—isn't it wonderful?" She sighed the sigh of the neophyte.

Fenton laughed. "Dear child, what is Broadway?"

"Broadway is New York and New York is Broadway—it is life," she blazed defiance.

"Poor child," he pitied. "New York is a display of fireworks—you are dazzled by it. What you call life is—well, three quarters of the men and women streaming in and out of the brightly lighted places are country folk, dizzy with the lights and the music and dancing—some day, often too late, they wake up."

Morella was a little frightened. In spite of her bravado, she had grown to fear the merciless city.

"But I am part of New York," she protested at last. "I help to make it gay with my dancing—of course I know I am only a bit of the tinsel of life—all the fresh color drained from her face. "I hope you will pardon me—but I read in the paper the other day of your engagement," her voice became halting. "She is very beautiful."

"You mean Miss Vare?"

"Yes."

"She is beautiful—but we are no longer engaged, and—" he bit his lip viciously and Morella saw that the memory of the other girl hurt him.

"I am sorry," she said, and tried to talk of other things, but her voice failed. She could not help thinking about the girl he loved—a girl who was pure gold and not the tinsel of the stage. That night as she dressed for the last scene, she hated the glittering elfin dress—creature of the hot lights of Broadway. Once someone asked her if she felt ill, but she shook her head and went on smiling, dancing—starry eyed, beautiful until the curtain came down, when suddenly she became a weary, draggled elf—the last to leave the dressing room.

Then, as she was leaving, a sweet feminine voice drew her back again. The great empty space behind the stage was vacant with here and there a dim light burning in a wire cage and Morella gasped as she recognized the charming girl in a rich evening coat, who had an elusive air of belonging to the gold of life.

It was Andrew Fenton's Miss Vare.

"I couldn't find a messenger," she said plaintively, "and I wonder if you will be kind enough to find out if Mr. Fenton is here—and take a message."

Morella was quite pale. She was wearing the little gray dress and hat and her hair was knotted low on her neck. "I shall be glad to take a message," she said slowly, for she was afraid.

"Thank you," said Miss Vare, "and now, please, tell him that Miss Vare will be waiting for him in the lobby and that she will drive him home—he will understand—tell him she will wait only five minutes," the sweet voice broke a little, and as she turned away Morella saw a triumphant curl of the haughty lips.

"She looks unkind," thought Morella, speeding on her errand, when she suddenly leaned against the wall and cried a little. She wanted to be gold. All at once strong hands gripped her shoulders and turned her around.

"Why the tears?" asked Fenton, gently.

"She is waiting for you—hurry—she will drive you home—she will wait just five minutes—I mean Miss Vare," she explained smiling through her tears.

"Is that all?" he asked searching her face with keen eyes.

"Is it not enough—from her?" she whispered.

He put his hand under her chin "Morella, shall I go?"

"Yes—before it is too late."

"And if I would rather stay with you—always?"

"Ah! I—I—I am only tinsel—"

He laughed exultantly and drew her close to his heart. "Beloved elf, don't you know that when Love, the Alchemist, touches tinsel—then tinsel is gold?"

BRAVING DANGER FOR THE MOVIES

News-Reel Cameraman Tells How He "Shot" Huge Quarry Explosion in Northern Wisconsin

You and I seldom realize, as we sit in the movie and watch a reel of pictures of happenings about the country and world being flashed upon the screen, what dangers and thrills motion picture cameramen are experiencing to give us those pictures.

Perhaps you do not remember seeing movie scenes of a great stone quarry in northern Wisconsin being blown to smithereens. If you do, however, you will recall that it seemed the lone boulders and dirt would fly right off the screen so close was the picture taken.

Harold P. Brown, cameraman of the International News Reel, is the man who "shot" that picture.

Placing the Camera

"When I arrived from St. Paul at the quarry," Mr. Brown told the writer just the other day, "my first duty was to find a suitable location from which to take the picture of the explosion. The quarry was an immense thing. I wanted to get as much of it in the picture as possible. But I couldn't get located. Finally, however, I did discover an old iron shed near the edge of the quarry. It looked like a pretty good place, apparently safe from flying rocks, so I set up my camera under the roof."

But he had hardly finished getting the camera in position when a string of cars pulled up in front and blocked the camera's vision. That meant another location.

Mr. Brown was just picking up his camera, when a representative of the Bureau of Mines, one of the men under whose direction the quarry was being blown up, came past. Mr. Brown hailed him.

"Can you suggest a location, safe and yet close to this quarry, from which I can get pictures of the explosion?"

The Bureau man thought a moment. "Just the place," he said. "Come along."

Finds Safe Spot

The quarry was a semicircular, cliff-like affair. The Bureau man led Mr. Brown to one side of the quarry. They stopped close to the edge. "Set your camera here," directed the man, "and everything will be perfectly safe and you will get a close-up picture. There won't be any danger from flying rock. You're on one end of the quarry. We've placed the dynamite so that the stone will all shoot out straight ahead and past this spot."

So Mr. Brown again set up his camera.

"Tons of dynamite had been planted in the quarry," says Mr. Brown. "The quarry was being blown up to loosen rock for workers to crush."

It wasn't long after the camera had been put into place that the dynamite was set off. There was a deafening roar. Mr. Brown turned the crank of his camera. Huge boulders shot close to his location and high into the air. Dust flew.

Rocks Begin to Fall

"I 'ground' for about ten seconds," Mr. Brown told me. "Then I happened to look up into the air. Rocks that looked as big as pianos were coming down over my head. I let go the crank, jerked my camera away and ducked behind a boulder that stood near. But I wasn't quick enough. A good sized rock smashed into my camera." He showed me the patch over the hole. "Then another rock broke a leg off the camera tripod." And to top it off, another rock crashed down onto the boulder behind which Mr. Brown crouched. It glanced off—and landed suarely on the cameraman's back.

"That night," laughed Mr. Brown, "I was a pretty sight going back to St. Paul—all rags and dirt."

But he had "shot" the picture.

ONE REEL YARNS

MISS CHATTERBOX

"And I'm having a perfectly darling new dress. It's to be pink, all embroidered, and I'm going to have some new slippers, with fancy buckles. I think I'll get satin ones. No, maybe patent leather. And then I'll—" Sally stopped for breath. Her two friends tried to get in a word, but it was useless. Sally was an incurable chatterbox.

She was an unselfish girl and would have been a great favorite except for her habit of talking too much. It was a relief to her friends, therefore, when Sally took down with tonsilitis and had to have her tonsils removed. They were glad to be rid of her ceaseless chattering for a little while.

For Sally her illness was very trying. She had to lie so still and keep so quiet. Then a couple of days after the operation her mother brought her the news that Miss Adams, a writer of whom Sally had heard a great deal, was coming to town, and that Sally could go to a reception to be held for the authoress. Her mother assured Sally that she would be able to go by that time, but she would have to be very careful of her throat.

When the great day came, Sally's throat was still so sore that it was painful for her to talk. "Oh, dear," she sighed, "Miss Adams will think I am stupid. There are so many things I want to say to her."

At the reception, Sally was fortunate enough to sit beside the guest for awhile, and she almost cried when she could speak only a few sentences.

She was getting on her wraps to leave, when she heard the writer saying to her mother, "Mrs. Merriott, I so enjoyed your daughter. She is so quiet and well-bred. So many girls nowadays talk so much that it is a pleasure to meet one who is a good listener."

Sally opened her eyes wide. She was very thoughtful all the way home. "I guess they must have removed the chatterbox from Sally's throat when they took her tonsils out," said one of Sally's friends a few weeks later. "She talks about half as much as she used to and every one likes her so much more."

Parables of Safed the Sage

PARABLE OF THE PLAYTHINGS

BY DR. WILLIAM E. BARTON

HIS daughter of the daughter of Keturah hath Cousins, for I and Keturah we have other grandchildren. But they live in other cities, so that they see each other only in the Good Old Summertime.

Now it came to pass on a day that the daughter of the daughter of Keturah and her little cousin, even the small son of the son, they played together, and for a time all went very happily. And so did it nearly all the time.

But on this day they had played for a time when there arose a mighty wail from the son of my son. And when their mothers entered, behold, the daughter of the daughter of Keturah had all the playthings, and she held them high above the head of her little cousin.

And when Keturah and the wife of my son inquired concerning the trouble, and the little lad made loud lamentation, the daughter of the daughter of Keturah spake with great Consciousness of Virtue. And she said: I am teaching my little cousin to be Unselfish.

That is one way to do it, and the way in which it hath been done from the days of Eve down, albeit Keturah knoweth not how to do it in that way.

And I smiled much at the way in which the daughter of the daughter of Keturah taught her cousin to be unselfish, and I hoped that that method of instruction would not become too popular.

Nevertheless, there is something to be said for it.

When my friends who have automobiles take me driving, and I own more cars than any other man in town, then do I comfort myself, and say:

I am not wholly to be censured for thus cultivating good graces in the lives of my neighbors. Too easily might they grow Aristocratick, and proud of their Privilege.

I am a most Virtuous man in helping them to cultivate their generous sentiments. They live the better and enjoy life the more by reason of the sharing of their good things, and I will assist them in the distribution. I am teaching my neighbors to be Unselfish.

Abe Martin

"I don't care fer Thanksgivin' an' Christmas an' days like them, but I kin cover my face an' have as much fun as any girl on ole Hallowe'en," said Miss Pansy Mopps, today. Mrs. Em Moots tripped an' hurt her hip on th' cellar steps last night while flesin' from drunken mice.

"WOMAN GOD CHANGED" —RIVOLI

The final showing of "The Woman God Changed," a beautiful Paramount Cosmopolitan picture which is on view at the Rivoli theater, will be had today. This virile photoplay carries one to the tropics and many scenes of rare beauty are unfolded. Seena Owen and E. K. Lincoln head an unusually clever company of players. The story deals with the fortunes of a dancing girl who kills her common law husband and who later lands in court to find love and happiness. Others in the cast include Lillian Walker, Templer Saxe, Joseph Smiley, H. Cooper Cliff and Paul Nicholson.

DUSTIN FARNUM—MAJESTIC

"The Primal Law," a Fox picture now running at the Majestic theater, is an intense western story of a man among men, of a child over whom a mysterious menace hangs, of a band of conspirators who will stop at nothing to gain their ends unless halted by death or the fear of death, and of a girl from the east who finds her greatest interest in life in the man and the boy.

The star of this intense drama of human emotion and human life in the open is Dustin Farnum, who has won celebrity in roles of many different types. In "The Primal Law," he is given exceptional room to display his remarkable talents and abilities. E. Lloyd Sheldon wrote the story.

"SHAME"—LA CROSSE

One of the most sensational scenes ever shown on the screen is David Fielding's bareheaded fight with a wolf in "Shame," now running at the La Crosse theater.

Fielding's wife has reached the Alaskan cabin where her husband and child are staying and, as he carries her in, the wolf follows, snarling, and leaps at the man's throat. He clutches for the beast's neck, misses, and forces his wrist into its mouth, holding the white fangs apart. Back and forth across the floor the struggle goes on. For a few moments, feeling the death grip in the strength of the man, the struggles of the wolf are redoubled, and the hold is almost broken. Then the beast begins to weaken, and at last gives up the fight.

LOUISE GLAUM—STRAND

Charles J. Stumar, Louise Glaum's chief cinematographer since J. Parker Read, Jr., produced "Sahara" with Miss Glaum as the star, has achieved his masterwork in photographing "Love," the Associated Producers' offering at the Strand today. His associates on the Pacific Coast attended a preview of "Love" before it was exposed eastward and paid tribute to the truly exquisite effects obtained by this progressive artist.

ALICE LAKE—RIVIERA

Next to acting—and her whole life is centered on acting—Alice Lake, the delightful star whose latest picture, "Over the Wire," a Wesley Ruggles production for Metro is now showing at the Riviera revels in dancing. "I believe in the famous line of 'on with the dance'," she confides. "And why not? Work the phonograph overtime and trouble will travel the other way. If there's any unhappiness in this section of the world, I know dancing will send it a'packing. Besides I genuinely and sincerely love to dance. You know it was my first passion. When I was sixteen, I was a professional dancer at the Waldorf, and I danced in one of the early pictures I did. It is part of me. In fact, my great early ambition was to go on the stage in musical comedy where I might have been able to combine acting and dancing."

SENNETT COMEDIES—CASINO

Ben Turpin, a willing, eager Romeo in Mack Sennett's "A Small Town Idol," at the Casino today will be seen as a reluctant suitor in "Home Talent" when that Sennett spectacular comedy is released by Associated Producers. Romance that begins in a country hotel, ripens in ancient Rome and comes to a clamorous climax in a modern cabaret is disclosed in "Home Talent." Despite the chronological leaps, the story progresses with extraordinary smoothness and logical development. The Sennett comedy, "Youthful Fancy" also is on the bill.

"CAMILLE" OPENS AT THE RIVIERA ON SUNDAY

As an evidence of its tremendous popularity on the stage, it is estimated that "Camille," the Nazimova production for Metro pictures, in which Rudolph Valentino of "Four Horsemen" fame is the leading man, to be shown at the Riviera Sunday, has been played at least a thousand times in this country alone since its first production in France seventy years ago. An accurate estimate is extremely difficult to make, as nearly every stock company has it in its repertoire. Matilda Heron, who has the record for a long run of the play in this country, with forty-five performances in one season and twenty-one in another, played it for more than a decade, sometimes twice weekly. On this one play alone it is said that Miss Heron made $100,000. In France "Camille" has always been a tremendous box office attraction, its tragic story of love and sacrifice appearing not only to pleasure-loving Paris, but to the more staid cities and villages throughout the rest of the country. It is figured that the author's native land has witnessed nearly three thousand presentations of "Camille."

AN ORDER FOR ONE WIFE

An English traveler and another in Northern Waigeria became interested in a Home for Freed Slaves. Women and children were kept in the institution until they could be otherwise disposed of, which was generally by matrimony, in the case of the women when the author acted as a marriage broker. He says: "A Haussa soldier would come to me with a note from his commanding officer certifying him to be a man of good character and able to support a wife or another wife, as the case might be.

"I then turned over a corner of the note and scribbled: 'To Lady Superintendent, Freed Slaves' House.—Please let bearer have one wife.'"

The Origin of Your Name

No matter who you are it is likely that the origin of your name lies in the occupation of some of your remote ancestors, the evolution of which in many cases is remarkable if not romantic. Sometimes personal appearance or characteristics were seized upon to designate one person from another, or resemblance to some animal.

No Use to Baby

One of the gifts to the new baby was a tiny hairbrush. When Bobby, the baby's brother, saw it, he thought it was a toothbrush. "Gee," said Bobby, "he can't use this cause he was borned with an empty mouth."

The Mummified Miner

The collection of the Museum of Natural History in New York has been enriched by addition of a mummified miner from Chile, which was presented by the owners of the mines, where the body was uncovered. The miner was after copper and had burrowed into the earth a distance of fifteen feet when he was caught in a cave-in and buried.

DR. LORENZ HOLDING FREE CLINICS FOR NEW YORK CRIPPLES

Unfortunates Storm Hospital for Examination by World Famous Surgeon

OFFERS SERVICES AS RETURN FOR U. S. AID TO AUSTRIA

Grateful for Relief Sent to Starving Children

NEW YORK.—Cripples—in wheel chairs in automobiles and on crutches—stormed the Hospital for Joint Diseases Friday when Dr. Adolph Lorenz, famous Austrian surgeon, held the first of a series of clinics for the city's deformed. So great was the congestion that hospital authorities found it necessary to summon police reserves to handle the crowd.

The first patient arrived long before dawn, working his painful way up the hospital steps on twisted hands and knees, and crawling inside for a warm place to wait until the noted healer could see him.

An hour before the towering, gray-bearded surgeon arrived, more than two hundred persons had taken their places in line—mothers and fathers supporting thin, twisted children, adults with distorted limbs and backs, leaning on the arms of friends, or hobbling alone as best they could. Automobiles and wheel chairs lined the street outside.

Dr. Lorenz performed one operation to rectify a condition of knock-knees in a 19-year-old boy, chiselling through the bone and re-setting it, then encasing the patient from shoulders to feet in a plaster cast.

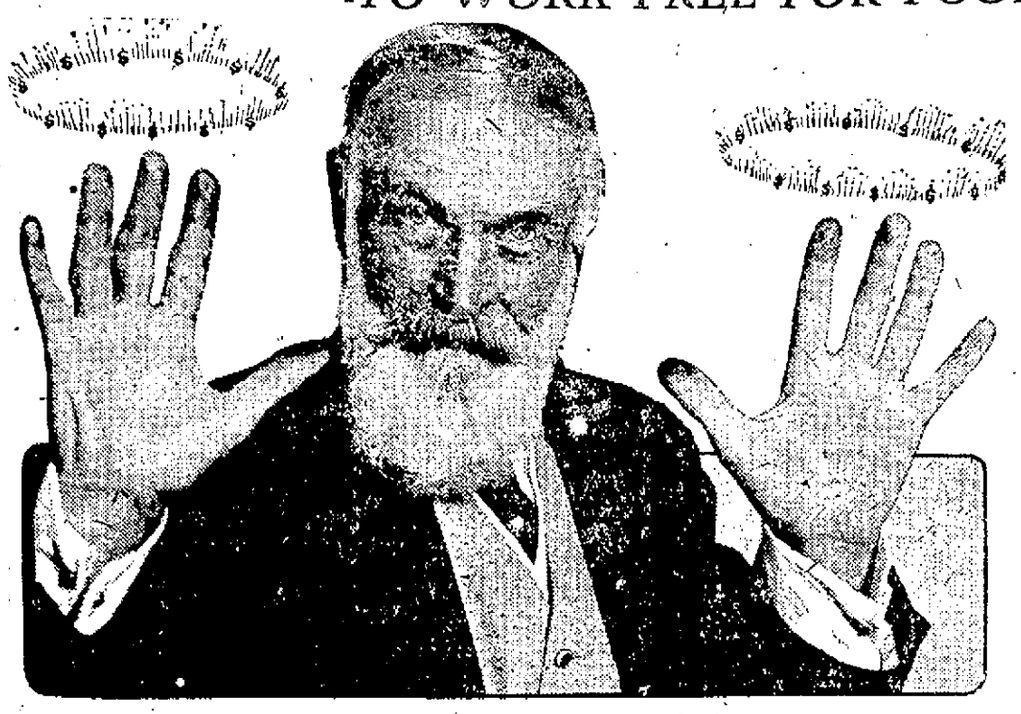
Following the operation, which was watched by scores of American surgeons, Dr. Lorenz proceeded swiftly from room to room, where other patients had been sent to await examination, prescribing treatments for some of the sufferers and making appointments for operations in other cases.

He examined about 100 applicants. The others, estimated by hospital authorities to number nearly one thousand, were told they would have to come back for later clinics.

Almost destitute himself, as a result of the war, Dr. Lorenz is holding free clinics here, and will hold them in other cities, as a testimonial of gratitude for the aid rendered by America to Austria's starving children.

He declared he could not even have come to America but for the intervention of friends who made the trip financially possible.

HIS HANDS, WORTH MILLIONS, TO WORK FREE FOR POOR



Dr. Adolf Lorenz and his miracle working hands.

BY EDWARD THIERRY

NEW YORK—The most wonderful hands in the world belong to Dr. Adolf Lorenz.

With them he can work greater miracles than the greatest pianist, sculptor or artist. These can only add pleasure to life.

But Lorenz's hands are worth millions. They can restore the crippled and the deformed to full health. He is the Vienna doctor who years ago cured Lolita Armour of a hip affliction.

Lorenz, who's 66, has spent his life curing crippled children whom other surgeons gave up as hopeless. He's in America to continue this work—he will treat poor children free in order, he says, to repay America for food relief to Austrian children.

A tall figure, long white whiskers, thin white hair, twinkling blue eyes—that's Lorenz.

"Hands up!" he smiled and held up his hands. "That means friendliness—but it's also a display of my wares. These hands are my tools—my instruments of painless surgery.

"Yes, they're strong. And in all these years they've acquired a little skill, perhaps. You see no muscles standing out but the sinews are there!

"My hands are just as strong today as when I was here 18 years ago. They must keep strong—they have much important work to do for humanity.

"I'm sorry my son couldn't come with me. He's doing the same work. We both use our hands, but sometimes the knife. He'll take my place eventually."

Lorenz's skill is so great that he can name any fee he wants—and get it. But—

"I never ask a fee from the poor—never!" he says.

Parents with crippled children need not come to New York to see Lorenz. He'll stay here till Christmas. Then he'll go to Chicago. And he'll visit smaller cities around Chicago.

Lorenz speaks English. He doesn't surround himself with secretaries and liveried servants. Everybody—especially the poor—can reach him without red tape.

TRAVELOGUE FEATURE OF SUNDAY NIGHT AT PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH

Views of Mountain District of Southeastern States to be Shown

As a patriotic after-thought from Thanksgiving day, the congregation of the First Presbyterian church, on Sunday evening, will be given the privilege of a "travelogue" through the southern mountain district of Kentucky, Tennessee, Virginia, and the Carolinas. This series of ninety views, recently photographed, has been taken in order to show the social and educational conditions which prevail in a section of the country where much of the "pure" American stock has been preserved in its original simplicity.

Rare glimpses of the picturesque valleys, glens and water-falls will be shown, along with the blue mountain vistas and the primitive rail-fenced farms. An insight into the crude home life is made possible, together with first hand views of some of "Roosevelt size" families, both black and white. Sturdy old time water mills of several types may be seen hidden away in the gulches beside the trout streams.

That other industry which has been imitated lately by some of our northerners with a "thirst"—the moonshine business—may be inspected here in its original setting; likewise portraits of the Kentucky feudists with their deadly weapons. In contrast with these relics of lawlessness, may be seen some of the schools and churches, where reckless ignorance and superstition are being supplanted by technical and domestic education, and by a deepened sense of righteousness and higher standards of patriotism.

With reference to the last, mention will be made of the four presidents—Jackson, Polk, Johnson and Lincoln—whose lineage may be traced to this region; also the fact that the Mecklenburg declaration of independence, which preceded the Philadelphia document by twelve months, had its conception among the ancestors of these mountain folk.

As a connecting link with the recent world war, there will be shown the likeness of Sergeant Alvin York, whose daring exploit in the capture of almost an entire company of Germans, gave him medals and nation-wide recognition. He is a resident of this section.

This is the second in the series of patriotic evenings which have been planned by the pastor, Rev. Claude B. Shaver, for the winter season. The public generally will be welcome; especially students and teachers.

FIRE IN AUGUSTA CAUSES DAMAGE OF MILLION AND HALF

C. So menacing did the blaze appear at one time that additional apparatus was requested from five other cities, including Atlanta, much of it having been started on its way before the fire was brought under control.

BLAINE TO TALK ON RAILROAD RATES AT GOVERNORS' MEET

Badger Executive to Discuss Rates in Relation to State Control

CONFERENCE OPENS DECEMBER FIFTH AT CHARLESTON, S. C.

Reception and Luncheon at White House Part of Program

MADISON, Wis.—Governor John J. Blaine will address the thirteenth annual governors' conference to be held in Charleston, S. C., December 5 to 7, on "Railroad Rates and State Control." He will be one of five governors to present formal papers that are to form the basis of discussion at the conference.

The fact that Wisconsin carried through a suit contesting jurisdiction of the interstate commerce commission over railroad rates within a state, under the Esch-Cummins law, while Governor Blaine was attorney general, has given him a special knowledge of the problem.

The conference which opens Monday, December 5, will be attended by 35 governors of states, according to Miles C. Riley, secretary. The program for the occasion, completed Saturday, includes a reception and luncheon with President and Mrs. Harding at the white house on Thursday, December 8.

Governor R. A. Cooper of South Carolina will open the conference on Monday morning with an address of welcome. Response will then be made by Governor D. W. Davis of Idaho.

The afternoon program will be devoted to an address by Merrill Moores, member of congress from Indiana, who has served on a committee of the commissioners on uniform legislation, studying the question of compacts and agreements between states under the federal constitution.

He will give the results of the committee study and make suggestions for state compacts which might serve to bring about a trend away from centralization of government in Washington. Following his address the governors will enter into general discussion of suggestions made by him.

Agricultural credit will be the subject of a Monday afternoon talk by Governor S. R. McKelvie of Nebraska, who has made a thorough study of agricultural credit methods used in this country, both by the state and national governments. His suggestions will be considered in a general discussion of all governors, in the same manner as all others formally presented.

The second day of the convention will be opened by an address on income taxation by Governor Thomas W. Hardwick of Georgia, while Governor Cary A. Hardee of Florida will address the afternoon session on prison management.

Governor Henry J. Allen will tell of the results of the Kansas industrial court and suggest possibilities of its extension into a national instrument for settling labor difficulties in an address on industrial peace in essential industries.

Governor Blaine opens the Wednesday morning meeting with his address on railroad rates and state control. The afternoon session will continue this discussion, followed by an informal round table consideration of miscellaneous governmental problems.

A complete social program has been arranged for the governors, who will be entertained with a reception on board the flag ship of the Atlantic destroyer squadron, Tuesday afternoon, with a reception on Wednesday evening, and with a luncheon at the white house on Thursday.

Mr. Hensgen had left home a week ago in the best of health to visit relatives at Cashton. He was stricken suddenly Tuesday afternoon with an acute attack of kidney trouble which caused his death.

He was formerly engaged in the cooperage business. He is survived by his wife and three children, Gertrude Hensgen and Mrs. Lena Roruff of La Crosse, and Peter N. Funeral services will be held at the home at 8:30 a. m. and from the Holy Trinity church at 9 a. m. Monday, Rev. Father Reisterer will officiate. Interment will be in the Catholic cemetery.

a continuing series of conferences with the aim of perpetuating a closer international accord.

The president's plan, which had been offered only as a personal suggestion to some of the foreign delegates who have generally approved it, was an outstanding topic of discussion in conference circles as the delegates convened for another committee session to take formal action on their virtual decision Friday for gradual abolishment of extra territorial rights in China.

To Include Germany and Russia

Submission of the result of the present negotiations for approval not only to the participating nations but to those not represented here, including Germany and Russia, was indicated as a possible first step toward world-wide endorsement of the conference plan, to the end that the smaller governments might join with the powers in future discussions affecting the world situation generally. Put forward by no means as a definite proposal at this time, the plan as offered by the president was understood to have embraced no details, nor was there any indication that any covenant or constitution would be proposed as a basis. This would accord generally with the possible fulfillment eventually of President Harding's "Association of Nations" idea.

Must Meet Again

The president's informal proposal comes at a time of growing indication that further negotiations will be necessary to consummate the task begun here, a case in point already reached being the virtual decision of the conference Friday to send an international committee of jurists to investigate China's judicial system. From the report of this committee the governments concerned would base their judgement of the efficiency of the Chinese courts and determine their course in withdrawing the foreign tribunals within China, the gradual abolishment of which was agreed upon in principle. Framing of a formal resolution declaring this purpose of the conference was left to a sub-committee headed by Senator Lodge.

The far eastern committee of the whole also was expected to conclude its discussion of the question of abolishing foreign postoffices in China.

THERE ARE 3 HEROES IN LOTHROP FAMILY

MRS. MILDRED LOTHROP AND TWO SIDES OF MEDAL SHE WON

HOMER, Neb.—The hero honor is split three ways in the home of Mrs. Mildred Lothrop, chief telephone operator of Homer.

Mother Lothrop and two of her five sons share it.

The two boys served overseas during the world war. They were the "talked about" around the family fireside until—

Mother Lothrop stuck to her switchboard during a cloudburst which sent Omaha creek surging over its banks. She warned farmers of the onrushing waters until the floor of her little office was flooded. Her heroism saved many lives.

Then Mother Lothrop was awarded the Theodore N. Vail gold medal and $1,000 in recognition of her heroic services.

"Now we know why we never fear of the Germans," says Mrs. Lothrop's sons.

"No one should ever fear anything," says Mrs. Lothrop. "All fear is futile."

SCREEN FOLK WILL TESTIFY IN BEHALF OF FATTY ARBUCKLE

Audience Disappointed Friday by Failure to Call Comedian to the Stand

SAN FRANCISCO, Calif.—Further defense testimony formed Saturday's program in the manslaughter trial of Fatty Arbuckle.

A delegation of witnesses from the Los Angeles motion picture colony headed by Alice Lake, screen star, was in San Francisco in expectation of taking the stand to testify in Arbuckle's behalf.

Judge Louderback's court room was packed Friday with persons who hoped to hear the defendant comedian testify and hundreds of others were turned away. No announcement has been made by the defense as to when Arbuckle would take the witness stand.

Medical experts gave evidence at Friday's session tending to show that the injury which caused the death of Virginia Rappe, in connection with whose death Arbuckle is on trial, may have been induced otherwise than by the defendant.

Enthusiastic adherents of the Navy Blue and the Army Gray shouted encouragement to their representatives on the gridiron, while pennants fluttered in the down pour and yell leaders pranced along the side lines. The torpedo yell of the Annapolis partisans and the siren cheer of the West Pointers vied with each other in spurring the elevens to combat while the 22 men on the field booted the slippery pigskin back and forth in preliminary practice.

Many prominent army and navy officers were in the mid-field boxes as well as numerous high government officials, including cabinet members and foreign diplomats.

FORMER LA CROSSE BOY STAGES DARING ESCAPE FROM HOME

Robs Police Officer Who Had Him in Custody and Gets Away in His Clothes

Norman Hanson, aged 17, a son of Rudolf Hanson, former resident of North La Crosse, now residing in Minneapolis, staged one of the most daring escapes from a police officer in the history of Minneapolis, according to word received by the local police. Forcing an officer at the point of a gun to disrobe and turn over to him his uniform, star and money, young Hanson made his get away and is still at large.

Hanson was sentenced to the Red Wing reform school several months ago for the theft of an automobile. Wanted in Minneapolis as a witness in another case, the boy was taken to that city in the custody of an agent of the reform school.

The boy persuaded the agent to take him to his home to see his mother. Arriving at the home, young Hanson asked leave to go into his bedroom to get some articles of wearing apparel. When he stepped back into the hall where the agent waited, the lad carried a revolver. Pointing the weapon at the officer, he compelled the man to take off his uniform and also robbed him of his star, grip and $23 in money. Then the boy locked the agent in a clothes closet, donned the officer's clothing, took his grip and escaped.

The agent, after being locked in the closet for an hour, finally succeeded in breaking down the door. In order to leave the house he was forced to put on young Hanson's clothing.

The Minneapolis police were unable to locate Hanson and it is believed the boy left the city.

WEEK-END SESSION ACTIVE

Demand For Rails Lends Strength to Other Issues

NEW YORK—The two hour session on the stock exchange Saturday was relatively the most active of any day this week. Transactions were on the basis of considerable more than 11,000,000 shares for a full session. The market gathered most of its strength from the spirited demand for rails, some of which rose to the year's highest levels. Equipments, oils and numerous specialties, particularly textiles and tobaccos joined the comprehensive movement. Realizing for profits caused only moderate reactions, the list closing strong. Sales approximated 500,000 shares. Decided strength also was shown by the bond list in which a majority of the liberty series established highest quotations of the year.

The short interest in the stock market was again driven to cover at the opening of the week-end session. Buying of rails and oils continued extensively. Union Pacific, Great Northern, Reading, Illinois Central and Texas and Pacific were most conspicuous among the rails. Standard Oil of New Jersey rose 2¾ points and further accumulation of Mexican and Pan-American Petroleums and Pierce Oil preferred was noted. Among specialties, American Tobacco, Central Leather preferred, and Utah Copper registered irregular gains. Sumatra Tobacco and Granby Consolidated were the only prominent stocks to show reactionary tendencies.

WHEAT MARKET WEAK

Prices Slump Until Reaction Follows Commission House Buying

CHICAGO, Ill.—Easier foreign markets made for a weak market at the opening of the Chicago Board of Trade Saturday, first prices were ⅝ to 1c lower, with December $1.11⅜ to ½ and May $1.14 to ¼.

Trade was light but the initial selling was general until support for May came out at $1.14. This checked the decline only momentarily, however, as scattered liquidation continued in December and the market declined further until strong commission houses started a recovery by buying May. At the end of the first hour December was back to $1.11¼ and May $1.14¼.

Toward the close a decided rally took place on expert estimates of world needs and seaboard advices that the continent was in the market for Manitobas. The close was strong with December $1.12⅜ to ½ and May $1.15½ to ⅝.

Corn opened ¼ to ⅝c lower, with December 49c and May 54⅜ to ⅝c. Cash houses sold December early in the session, but the prices moved within narrow limits.

Export demand tended to steady corn but week-end evening up nullified this. The close was unsettled with December 48⅞ to 49c and May 54⅝c

Oats started unchanged to ⅛c lower, December 33⅜ to ½c and May 38½ to ⅝c. Trade was dull.

Provisions were weaker.

FORMER "COW GIRL" MAKSE OPERA DEBUT WITH MARY GARDEN

CHICAGO, Ill.—When Miss Mary McCormic made her operatic debut as Michaela in "Carmen" Saturday afternoon she passed a chapter in her career as romantic as the part she portrays on the stage.

This first appearance with Mary Garden, Muratore and Baklanoff is a long step from the prairie schooner in which she traveled with her parents to Belleville, Ark. During her childhood this town was her home and she worked as a cow girl in several western states before starting her study of music.

By working without financial aid, singing in church choirs and whenever opportunity offered to make a living, she became the successful one of seventy-five candidates tried out by Miss Garden, director of the Chicago Opera company last spring.

During the summer the young woman studied French and Italian to improve her accent and learned the complete scores of eight operas.

It is evident Hungary is not hungry for a Hapsburg.

FOOTBALL CLAIMS TEN VICTIMS FOR SEASON OF 1921

Death List is Three Less than Casualties of Last Year

CHICAGO, Ill.—By The Associated Press.—Football claimed ten victims during the 1921 season which closed with Thanksgiving day games, according to reports to the Associated Press Saturday.

The death list was three less than 1920 and three above the toll of two years ago. Ten lives were lost as the result of games in 1918, twelve in 1917, eighteen in 1916 and fifteen in 1915.

As in former years, the majority of youths killed were members of high school teams. The figures apparently uphold the contention of football experts that proper training and physical condition greatly minimize the danger of the game; for only one of the players killed was a member of a college eleven. One was a semi-pro player, one a member of a naval team and the remainder were high school or sand lot players who did not receive the training and physical inspections given in colleges.

With one exception none of the victims were more than twenty years old.

STEVENS POINT IN WIN OVER MILWAUKEE NORMAL TURKEY DAY

Coach George Downer's Milwaukee Normal school eleven closed its season on Turkey day by losing to the Stevens Point Normal school aggregation, the score being 12 to 0.

Downer's men showed great form but could not cope with the northerners. A bad break in the second half gave Stevens Point one of its touchdowns when Stone, owing to the poor condition of the field, failed at a punt.

The rival teams opened up in the fourth quarter. Milwaukee started a forward passing game but for the most they were unsuccessful. Later in the quarter Stevens Point pushed the ball over the second and last touchdown. Stevens Point failed twice to kick the goal after touchdowns.

ARMY AND NAVY PREPARE FOR GREATEST BATTLE OF GRID SEASON AT NEW YORK

High Officials of Both Army and Navy to Witness Annual Clash for Gridiron Supremacy Scheduled Today

NEW YORK.—Limitation of armies and scrapping of navies were farthest from the thoughts of Uncle Sam's army and navy Saturday when the football elevens from Annapolis and West Point clashed in the battle array at the Polo grounds. The contest not only settles the question of the year's football supremacy between the two branches of the service, but this year closes an eastern gridiron season notable for its thrills and upsets. Advance sales indicated that the Polo grounds would be filled to their capacity—40,000.

Diplomatic Washington had made its annual fall pilgrimage to New York and this year box seats had been allotted certain delegates to the arms conference who had come from far off lands where a football scrimmage was an unknown form of warfare.

The lads from Annapolis had their spyglasses fastened on what they deemed to be the star of victory, for they were giving the odds in the betting.

But the boys from West Point had come down the Hudson determined to bombard into oblivion the hopes of their cousins in the service, and confident that the defeats they had received from Yale and Notre Dame would only serve as braicers.

Teams Hold Light Drill

Defeated only by Penn State after having battered Princeton into submission, the Middies took the field today at the Polo grounds and put in a period of snappy final practice. Outside the gates, waiting to get in, was the Army, and as soon as the Annapolis eleven had called it a day, the West Pointers began frisking over the gridiron.

Friday both elevens turned in early. Saturday morning their supporters will arrive—a regiment from West Point and a regiment from Annapolis to march onto the field and give New York its annual sesame treat.

Arriving from Washington are officers high in each branch of the service, diplomats and statesmen, figures prominent in the civic and social life of the nation. Accompanying them, to gaze for the first time on a game of American football, were foreign delegates to the arms conference.

From north, south, east and west came old West Pointers able to get leave for the day's journey and old salts whose ships were in nearby ports. Just to fill up the cracks there will pour into the stadium every American who has been able to capture a ticket.

Weather observers and custodians of the gridiron joined in promising conditions for fast play. The former predicted increasing cloudiness but no rain; the latter pointed with satisfaction to a field dried by today's sunshine and breeze.

French, the Army's star back, will not be in the first lineup facing Navy, it was announced tonight. He probably will be sent into action after the first half. While Conroy Koehler, Barchet and Cruise will start for Navy in the backfield. Hughes, Noyes and McKee will be used later, Coach Fordwell said.

Weeks and Denby to See Game

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Both Secretary Weeks and assistant Secretary Wainwright of the war department were preparing today to witness the annual football game in New York between the Army and Navy.

Gen. Pershing was suffering from a slight cold and was advised by his physician not to go to New York for the game. Acting under this advice, the general decided to remain in Washington.

Maj. Gen. Harbord, deputy chief of staff, headed a large number of army officers and friends who left today for New York.

Secretary of the navy and Mrs. Denby, with Mr. and Mrs. Charles Denby left today to attend the game. Assistant Sec. Roosevelt also left for New York with the same objective. Among the naval officers from Washington are Admiral Coontz, Rear Admiral Washington, Rear Admiral Robinson, and Capt. David Sellers, aid to Secretary Denby.

MILWAUKEE, Wis.—Rocky Kansas, Buffalo boxer, Friday was suspended by the State athletic commission from boxing in Wisconsin for the next sixty days, for violating the commission's rules. BEEF STILL COUNTS ON THIS ELEVEN

Captain Charles Mabbutt of Camp Holabird.

BALTIMORE.—Camp Holabird, near Baltimore, has a famous football team. Besides hanging up a fine record for games won, the team also is famous for its beef. The soldiers' line weighs a total of 1514 pounds, end to end, an average per man of 216 2-7 pounds.

The line isn't slow freight either. It has succeeded in outrushing its opponents right along.

The captain and coach of this big team is Captain Charles J. Mabbutt, a lad weighing 220 pounds and a former star of the University of Idaho. He plays center.

The smallest man in the line is Tom Tritta, right end. He weighs 184. But Tom more than makes up for his lightness by his brand of play. He, besides being a football star, is a heavyweight fighter with a mean kick. He wins his fights by knockouts.

Another scrapper, Eddie Barnbrook middleweight champion of the Third Corps Area, plays halfback.

The beef in the line and its quantity:

Tom Tritta, right end, 184 pounds; Captain Underwood, right tackle, 218 pounds; Rubeuls, right guard, 199; Mabbutt, center, 220; Hoppee, left guard, 194; Morse, left tackle 240; Lewis, left end, 180.

All of the big army camps in the east have football teams of class. They're now playing an elimination series and Holabird is hopeful of winning the championship, in which event they will play the 2 Marine Corps champions here Dec. 3. The winner, on the following Saturday, will play the Great Lakes Gobs. The winner will be crowned the football service champion of America.

CORNELL IS ASKED TO PASADENA FOR NEW YEAR GAME

PASADENA, Cal.—Announcement was made for the Tournament of Roses association Friday that football teams of Cornell university of Ithaca, N. Y., and the University of California of Berkeley would be invited to play the annual New Year's day east vs. west game at Tournament field this season.

Cornell May Not Go

ITHACA, N. Y.—There is scant possibility, it was stated Friday that Cornell university will accept an invitation from Pasadena to send its undefeated football team to California to play the University of California as the opponent. Because of the absence of Graduate Manager Berry, it was impossible to learn what answer will be sent. It is understood from other sources, however, that Cornell will not accept the invitation, the season having officially closed with the game with University of Pennsylvania Thursday.

TOKIO.—The cabinet was reported to have instructed Japanese delegates to the armament conference to endeavor to maintain a seventy per cent ratio in naval armaments.

Well, Germany is using her marks at any rate.

Some of these song hits should have missed.

Y. M. C. A. DELEGATES ATTEND OLDER BOYS' MEET AT MILWAUKEE

To Enter Strong Bid to Bring Conference to La Crosse Next Year

That the delegation of the La Crosse Y. M. C. A. which left Thursday evening to attend the Older Boys' conference being held at Milwaukee this week-end was the largest and one of the best that has represented the local institution was the statement of "Y" officials to a reporter for the Tribune and Leader-Press Friday evening.

The Older Boys' conference is an annual event, being held on Friday, Saturday and Sunday following Thanksgiving Day each year. Increased interest has been manifested in the work of the Y. M. C. A. here this year with the result that the La Crosse delegation will make a strong bid for the conference to be held in this city next year. A student conference is also a part of the meeting.

The La Crosse delegation is composed of fourteen older boys, high school age and representing many churches of the city, five students of local normal and four leaders. Those under the latter classification included: A. L. Meyers, Allen Davey, Dan Scott and A. B. Whitfedge. Over two housand Older Boys and students were expected to attend.

At the business session of the conference the place of meeting for the ensuing years is determined. The La Crosse delegation was equipped to make a strong bid to bring the conference here next year. It was understood that Janesville also entertained hopes of landing the conference in 1922.
